

New Crime Probes Loom Across U.S.

'Fixes,' Dope Trade Among New Items To Come Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dope peddling, organized prostitution and "fixes" of basketball games and other sports events shaped up today as possible fields for new investigations by the Senate Crime Committee.

With Senator Herbert O'Connor (Dem., Md.) taking over from Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) as chairman, the group discussed these lines of inquiry at a closed-door session Tuesday but made no final decisions.

The committee's immediate attention will be focused on drafting the anti-crime legislation it has recommended.

New Zealand's Civilians To Fight Strikes

'Law And Order' Force Lined Up

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—Men lined up at New Zealand ports today to join the country's new civilian "law and order" force.

Their enrollment for the emergency force came 24 hours after Prime Minister Sidney Holland had called on every able-bodied man to fight "wreckers and trouble-makers trying to overthrow orderly government."

Police in Wellington, enforcing new "get tough" orders, broke up a march by 1,000 striking dock workers Tuesday.

Holland's appeal for civilian volunteers came as the dock workers' strike dragged through its 10th week. Beatings and the dynamiting of a coal district bridge had added to the tension.

Lines had formed before the civilian recruiting offices opened in many places today. More than 1,000 men had volunteered in Auckland by the early afternoon.

About 100 police used batons on the Wellington strikers when they tried to march through police lines to the Parliament Buildings.

The marchers dispersed after being told a deputation would meet the government.

New Zealand's industrial crisis stems from the dock strike for higher wages. The government dissolved the Longshoremen's Union and appealed to the men to form new unions.

Protest Sale To China Reds

LONDON (CP)—Disclosure of big rubber shipments from the British colonies to Communist China touched off an angry uproar in the House of Commons today.

Official figures supplied to the House by the Colonial Office showed British Malaya sent the Chinese Communists 120,000 tons of this highly strategic material in the nine months ending in March. This compared with 27,500 tons during the whole of 1949.

Independent member Raymond Blackburn asserted Britain supplied Red China with "thousands of tons of steel, with locomotives, ships and aircraft" during January, February and March.

GOVERNOR WILL START GIANT PRESS ROLLING

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace will visit the new Douglas Street plant of Victoria Press Ltd. next Monday morning to press the button which will start the giant new press rolling.

The Goss press, capable of producing 40,000 newspapers an hour, will print both city newspapers. The Victoria Daily Times will be first off, Monday evening, with the Daily Colonist following with its regular editions Tuesday morning.

His Honor will be accompanied for inaugural ceremonies by his aide, Col. Hobart Molson.

Hermit's home believed to contain hidden fortune.

$150,000 may be under this pile of junk.

Sealed Doors In Hermit House Present Puzzle

Discovery of sealed doors in the ramshackle Saanich home of the late Edward Leney added to the belief today that a fortune of possibly $150,000 may be hidden in the cobwebbed house of the 71-year-old hermit who died here recently.

Acquaintances of Leney persisted in their belief that Leney, reputed heir of a wealthy English family, may have hidden a fortune in his house in an overgrown 17-acre apple orchard along Lindsey Street. They said they once saw Leney pull out a fistful of bills when selling apples to persons.

Special Force Men A.W.O.L. Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says today in a newspaper story that five soldiers absent without leave were arrested here Tuesday night as military police launched a drive to round up missing members of the special Korea force.

It says an estimated 200 soldiers are away from their units. Some disappeared during a leave before they were to entrain for Fort Lewis, Wash., and final training.

'HOW I TOOK THE STONE' Stone Daringly Hidden In Populated District

By IAN HAMILTON

(With the police showing no interest in his movements, Ian considers it foolish to continue his journey to Wales and accomplish nothing. Returning to Reading, he found Alan still waiting for Gavin. Several trains arrived from London but their hopes deflated when Gavin was not on any of them. They returned to London, waited until dark, then set out to move the Stone to a safer hiding place.)

CHAPTER 9

A dozen times we stopped the car to look at a likely place only to discover it was someone's back garden, and we laughed rather worriedly at the idea of hiding it in some rich stockbroker's shrubbery.

We drove on for God knows how long. Then we pulled up a steep hill, the engine for the first time complaining in first gear at the weight of the Stone. We crept cautiously down the other side, and came on more and still more houses.

For the last half-hour Alan had been arguing that the main road was the best place. "Hide it where they'll least expect it," he had urged but I would not listen to him, for I feared discovery by the chance passer-by.

Now, however, that I saw how densely populated the district was, I knew he was right and fell into agreement with him.

The problem was how to get back on to the main road, for we were hopelessly lost, and a large-scale motoring map was of little use.

At length, by luck, by guidance from the locals and by diligently reading sign-posts, we again hit the sign post and turned south.

First Red Spring Attack 'Great Victory' For U.N.

Reds Fail To Lower Two Rivers

TOKYO (AP)—Communist forces lost their battle to control the rivers which must be crossed in the next phase of their spring offensive.

American naval planes bombed gaping holes in the floodgates of the Hwachon reservoir and sent water rushing back into the Pukhan and Han Rivers. The Reds had closed the gates in an effort to lower these water barriers for an easy crossing.

As the rivers returned toward normal levels, U.N. tank patrols rumbled out Wednesday on Red hunts.

One tank force stabbed 11 miles north of Seoul to the Uijongbu area and ran into a Chinese ambush. The force fought their way through Red attempts to set up a road block.

Other armored patrols searched the immense "V" formed by the Pukhan and Han Rivers east of Seoul. They found no Reds.

PLANES HIT RESERVES

Allied planes found plenty of targets on the highways. They blasted Red efforts to build up manpower and supplies for a renewal of their halted offensive.

The Communists closed the sluice gates Monday night to lower the level of the two rivers. Planes from the U.S. carrier Princeton opened the gates Tuesday. They swept in across the reservoir and skipped 1,000-pound bombs into the two floodgates.

First reports said they used aerial torpedoes but later AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said they used bombs with special fuses to cause the greatest amount of underwater damage.

One of the 18 floodgates was destroyed. A 10-foot hole was ripped in another.

MUST BUILD BRIDGES

Now the Reds will have to build bridges to cross the river. Their engineers will be easy targets for United Nations artillery and planes which blasted the drive out of the nine-day-old Communist offensive.

The front was quiet again Wednesday.

Ineffective Communist efforts Tuesday to find a soft spot in Allied lines cost them 1,205 men. That was the lightest toll of the offensive, in which Red casualties rose above 75,000.

Communists today mounted light probing attempts below the Hwachon Dam in the centre of the peninsula. These were blocked.

Associated Press correspondent Nate Polowetzky said the Reds were testing the U.N. lines along the Chunchon-Hongchon axis, a traditional invasion route down the spiny centre of the peninsula.

Appeal Dismissed

Dr. George W. Fletcher has lost his appeal in County Court against a conviction by Magistrate H. C. Hall of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Judge L. A. Hanna dismissed the appeal Tuesday.

Dr. Fletcher was sentenced by Magistrate Hall to seven days' imprisonment. He was also prohibited from driving for three months.

Match Trial Monday

MONTREAL (CP)—Trial of five match trial companies on a charge of forming or operating a Canadian match monopoly will resume next Monday, court officials said today. More than 1,200 exhibits had been entered.

B.C. MAN CHIEF STAFF OFFICER, NEW DIVISION

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Col. Ernest Deighton Danby, 35, a native of New Westminster, B.C., has been named the top staff officer at headquarters of the new Commonwealth division being established in Korea.

The army said today he will be General Staff Officer Grade One—the so-called G1—on the staff of British Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels when the Division comes into being. Gen. Cassels will command the division.

Canada's 25th Brigade will make up one-third of the Division's combat manpower.

Col. Danby, educated in Vancouver and first commissioned in that city's Seaford Highlanders in 1936, built up a broad experience both as a combat and a staff officer in the Second World War in which he was severely wounded.

OIL DECREE SIGNED AS DIPLOMATS CALL

Nationalization Law Does Not Mean Expropriation, Official Says

TEHRAN (Reuters)—The Shah of Iran today signed decrees nationalizing the country's British-run oil industry. With his signature, the Shah passed into law a series of bills rushed through the Majlis (Legislature) in five days.

The British and United States ambassadors called separately on Premier Mohammed Mussadeq earlier today.

They are understood to have told him their countries wanted the oil dispute settled, not in a one-sided action but in a manner agreed by Iran and the British-run Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Britain already has announced she would regard the immediate nationalization of the Iranian oil industry as a breach of Iran's contract with the Anglo-Iranian, but she was ready to negotiate for the formation of a new company in which Iran would share control.

The British government owns 32 per cent of the common stock of Anglo-Iranian.

The Iranian government declared today that "legitimate claims" of Anglo-Iranian would be considered before the industry is nationalized.

Iranian Official At Foreign Office

LONDON (Reuters)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison today received the Iranian ambassador, Ali Soheily, to discuss Iran's nationalization of the Iranian oil industry.

Soheily called at the Foreign Office after Morrison told Parliament yesterday the British government wished to talk over the situation with Iran "but could not negotiate under duress."

Gunmakers Join Arsenal Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—The men who forge the guns at Woolwich Arsenal, London's big armament centre, today joined in the eight-day-long wildcat strike of 2,000 skilled engineers.

Cartridge-factory mechanics also stopped work.

The strikers demand the removal of a non-union inspector. Workers at eight British ordnance factories, including the arsenal, have also refused to work overtime because of a wage dispute.

No British Jets In Red Aircraft

LONDON (Reuters)—Allegations by a United States senator that Communist jet planes shot down in Korea had British-built engines were unfounded. Air Secretary Arthur Henderson indicated today.

Henderson, challenged in the House of Commons to refute the allegation, said: "No enemy jet aircraft shot down in Korea has landed in territory occupied by the U.S. forces and consequently no information has been obtained as to the country of manufacture of the jet engines."

OLD SOL FACES JOB May Record 333 Hours

Old Sol today was making every effort to stay in the news. After taking a big part in shattering four records in April on amounts of sunshine and low precipitation, he shone over 18 hours in the first day and a half of May. The forecast today was for continued clear weather Thursday.

The April sunshine record was 303 hours. To break the May record, Sol is going to have to shine over 333 hours. That's the standing record for the month set in 1935 and repeated in 1938.

Van Fleet Says Foe To Try Again

KOREAN FRONT (AP)—Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.N. ground commander, said today that the first phase of the Communist spring offensive "has ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

He made his comment after a flying visit to 10th Corps advance headquarters.

Van Fleet said he thought the Chinese would strike again.

He added: "He has the capability of hitting again as hard as before or harder. However, I am confident the results will be the same."

"We have punished the Communist forces severely," Van Fleet said. "The enemy has failed in the first phase of his offensive. He has paid a heavy price. The first part of the battle has ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

He said he believes the spring Communist offensive was designed to gain a quick military decision in Korea.

"Certainly it is part of his announced plan to destroy us or force us into the sea," he said.

Eight Aussies Killed

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australia's heaviest casualty list from Korea today listed eight dead, 22 missing and 55 wounded.

May Re-Establish Rent Control Office Here

Rent control offices may be re-established in Victoria now that the provincial government has taken over jurisdiction in the field from the federal government.

Labor Minister John Cates under whose department rent control has been placed, said prior to his departure for Vancouver today the question will be discussed by the provincial cabinet.

At the same time he made it known that for the time being the rent control procedure of the federal authorities will be continued with "orderly decontrol" coming later.

In announcing the provincial rent control plan last month, Premier Byron Johnson promised "orderly decontrol" with both landlords and tenants being consulted.

Until decontrol steps are taken the regulations will allow for recourse to a county court judge for persons involved in disputes.

Under the regulations landlords in certain cases have the right to apply for rent adjustments in which case a rental appraiser investigates.

If either landlord or tenant is not in agreement on the matter, appeal may be made to the Court of Rental Appeals, consisting of county court judges.

These same judges also have authority in deciding on applications for eviction of allegedly undesirable tenants.

Main Line Of C.N.R. Cut By Big Mud Slide

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 900-foot mud slide oozed over Canadian National Railway's transcontinental line in the Thompson Canyon today.

The C.N.R. re-routed trains over Canadian Pacific Railway lines around the slide near Spence's Bridge, about 200 miles northeast of Vancouver.

C.N.R. trains into Vancouver were running three hours late. Officials said it would be at least two days before the tracks could be cleared.

Meanwhile, heavy rain also caused minor flooding in the southeastern corner of the province near Cranbrook.

A mud slide which had blocked the southern trans-provincial highway near Fernie was cleared Tuesday.

As Conspicuous As A Body--Seemingly

We were now very worried for we had been hunting a long time for a hiding place.

We had yawned about half over Kent, and had found nowhere. In a murder case, I am told, the greatest difficulty is to get rid of the body, and this was almost as conspicuous as a body.

I heard Alan muttering to himself, "Flying Dutchman!" he was saying. "Condemned to yawn the seas for love of woman—flying bloody Scotsmen, condemned to yawn the road for love of a stone!"

We were now in such panic that we stopped at the first clump of bushes we came to. On the south side of the road there was a grass bank perhaps 20 feet wide, beyond which was a clump of bushes which would not have hidden a sparrow.

With the optimism born of fear we dragged the Stone across to it, only to drag it back, laughing at our folly, to fight down the fear and panic which was rising in our throats.

We let in the clutch and drove east, thinking of the seashore. A few miles further on, we passed the outline of aircraft hangers on our right, and shortly after came to a line of trees. Alan stopped the car, and I ran over to den the Stone where it would never be found. We alone knew where it was, and we were certain that even if we were arrested, we would be able to pass on our information to some fellow Scot.

We only hoped that Kay was as fortunate with her piece as we had been with ours.

I lay in the back seat and slept, for I was now very tired. It was almost 90 hours since we had been in bed and responsibility had kept us going.

Now our only responsibility was to ourselves, and that is no responsibility at all. I slept like a dead man.

As we approached the suburbs, I woke up and took over. With-out a word Alan, white-faced and staring, stumbled into the back seat and collapsed. I felt quite fresh and able to go on.

I tried to sing a little, but I had stamina only for driving. I sat staring along the headlights smoking cigarette after cigarette.

When I had reached nearly to the West End, I knew I was lost again. I expanded magnificently into a series of soul-relieving oaths.

I wandered round deserted streets for almost an hour, and crossed Blackfriars Bridge, three times before I saw St. Paul's.

We had covered 80 miles in eight hours. In the state we were in that itself was a miracle.

I had left the door open and the fresh air awakened Alan, who climbed out stiffly. We washed ourselves in the roadside frost and then looked at each other and smiled.

The Press Still On Holiday

We stopped at Fleet Street and Alan wakened long enough to nip out to try to get a morning paper. He came back with the news that the press were still on holiday and collapsed fast asleep again.

We drove through the deserted streets to the Edgeware Road. An occasional police car passed us and we drove at the 30 mark for it would have been irony to have got away with the Stone only to be arrested for speeding. Nevertheless we made good time.

I was not consciously tired, but I had long since given up watch-examine the place.

It was ideal. The road at this point was 10 yards out from the trees and the ground sloped steeply down an embankment to the wood.

The embankment was overgrown and littered with straw and old papers. Above all, a quick scratch with my hand showed that the earth was soft and could easily be hollowed away to make a bed for the Stone.

I went back to Alan, and again we manhandled the Stone from the car. We had almost worn away the upholstery, but that was the least of our worries.

We took the map with us and whenever a car passed as we crossed the grass strip, we sat on the Stone and consulted the map, hoping that we did not look suspicious.

We dragged the Stone under the fence and half way down the slope I followed a recess in the earthy mould.

We lifted the Stone bodily into it and covered it first with earth, then with straw, and then with papers.

We stood back to admire our handiwork by the light of Alan's torch. We were certain we had done a good job.

where north of Elstree I noticed I was very tired.

I was taking corners erratically. I was dazzled by the few approaching cars and drove through their headlights more by faith than by vision; occasionally the gear box made protesting sounds, and I realized I was confusing the dip-switch with the clutch. I knew it was time to sleep.

There was a wide grassy patch at the side of the road and I turned on to it. I must have misjudged the speed for we gave a mighty jump and bounced wildly as we hit the side.

The car came to rest and I switched off the engine. I climbed over the driving seat and fell down beside Alan.

I was awakened, I don't know how much later, by Alan starting the engine. I got the map and showed him where we were and told him to make for the Great North Road at Hatfield. Then I fell asleep again.

When I awakened, we were at the side of the road with the engine stopped and Alan was asleep over the wheel.

I awakened him and he got into the back. The next thing I remember was waking up in broad daylight. I, too, had been asleep.

We were close in to the side of the road, but the lights were still on and this time the engine was running.

I got out into the stiff, grey, coldness, and the fresh air slapped me across the face. We were on the Great North Road near Biggleswade. We were 50 miles from London and 80 miles from Rochester.

We had covered 80 miles in eight hours. In the state we were in that itself was a miracle.

I had left the door open and the fresh air awakened Alan, who climbed out stiffly. We washed ourselves in the roadside frost and then looked at each other and smiled.

Festival Of Britain To Defy World Crisis

LONDON (CP)—The British people, who are said to take their pleasures painfully, set out tomorrow to show that they, too, can be the life of the party.

From tiny villages with such rakish names as Nether Wallop and Great Duddington to the strange metal structures which have been grafted on the grey, blitzed heart of London, Britain will be "at home" to the world in a five-month frolic of fun, fantasy and color.

For better or worse, the festival of Britain—a reality at last—will unfold with varying pomp on 2,000 communities across the country. With touching faith, sponsors of festival arrangements in some small places have even engaged interpreters to cope with the expected tourist traffic.

The festival was originally planned years ago as a token of national resurgence, a sign that Britain had come back the hard way. Since then the lofty purpose has been somewhat blunted by world events, and the keynote now is gaiety.

"I want everyone in Britain to see it, to take part in it, to enjoy it," says Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, long a festival booster. "I want to hear the people sing."

Claim Wedemeyer Backed MacArthur

Tokyo Staff, G.O.P. Chiefs Say Long Secret Report Proves Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Backers of Gen. MacArthur claimed today that the long-secret Wedemeyer report on Korea, made public Tuesday, proves that administration policy in Korea and China was wrong.

Meanwhile, it was reported that a record of the conference on Wake Island last fall between President Truman and MacArthur may be made public.

Three key Republican Senators—Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, William F. Knowland of California, and Style Bridges of New Hampshire—said the report by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer gives new weight to MacArthur's views on Far East policy.

MacArthur is scheduled as the star witness at closed hearings opening tomorrow on Pacific policy.

The hearings grew out of the conflict between President Truman and MacArthur over the conduct of hostilities in the Orient. The disagreement led to MacArthur's removal as Far East commander.

North Korea Waited For U.S. To Pull Out

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's 1947 report on Korea coincides almost completely with opinion at that time in Gen. MacArthur's headquarters here.

Military men agreed that the American occupation force was the principal factor preventing an earlier North Korean attack on South Korea.

By 1947, the Russian-trained North Korean Army had staged border raids across the 38th parallel—evidently to test its strength.

The North Koreans clearly showed their military superiority. American military authorities believed they postponed an all-out assault because it would have meant attacking American troops.

Start Plans For Amalgamation

NANAIMO—First break in the two-year deadlock over amalgamation of Brechin and Harwood districts with the City of Nanaimo has come with preparation of an amalgamation petition to be submitted to Brechin ratepayers May 9, according to Allan Hokanson, president of Brechin Ratepayers' Association.

Signatures representing 51 per cent of the assessed property in the district must be affixed before the petition is recognized.

If this is achieved, the petition will go to the Department of Municipal Affairs for ratification.

Railways And Consumers

BY THEIR PRESENT APPLICATION to the Transport Board Canadian railways seek to fasten directly on the people of Canada the cost of a 40-hour week for railway workers, beginning June 1.

That cost would be heavy. The railways ask for a horizontal freight rate increase of 14 per cent—this on top of a 5 per cent increase demanded last December. Together the two increases would raise the cost of freight by $87 millions a year. No one but the ordinary consumer, through the increased price of goods, would pay these costs. The 40-hour week would be translated directly into a higher cost of living. And it would be translated in a most inequitable fashion.

A horizontal rate increase has never applied evenly throughout the country. Since the railways must compete with St. Lawrence River transportation and trucks in central Canada but face no comparable competition west of the Lakes, they raise their rates to the permitted maximum in the west and impose lower rates in Ontario and Quebec. Hence the present unfair, top-sided rate structure by which western people pay more for transportation than those of central Canada.

The Transport Board has been instructed by the Government to iron out these inequities. The Transport Commission recently insisted that equalization be undertaken at once. Clearly this work should be completed before rates are generally increased again since, under the existing practice, an increase in rates increases the inequity between the west and central Canada.

In any case the railways have shown no sufficient cause for the rate increase now asked. Freight rates in Canada are based solely on the operations of the Canadian Pacific Railway because the capital structure of the National system is too artificial and fictitious to form a reliable guide to costs. In 1950 the net earnings of the C.P.R. were $38 millions as against $20 millions in the previous year. This huge increase does not suggest the need of another rate increase costing the Canadian consumer $87 millions a year. And in 1951 the railways, carrying the freight of a defence boom, are taking in more money than in 1950.

The cost of the 40-hour week, like all railway costs, will be paid by the public, but the cost should not be so large as the railways now demand and should not be levied until it can be levied on a fair basis after rates have been equalized.

Festival Of Britain

TOMORROW THE EYES OF THE free world will be directed away, at least briefly, from the whirling scenes of strife to something of a man-made miracle. They will focus on the Festival of Britain at its formal opening by the King. Beside the Thames, which has been called "liquid history," pavilion doors will be thrown open to throngs of visitors intent on seeing the products of the British Isles, and through and beyond them the spirit of a country strong in tradition and firm in faith, yet proving daily its ability to keep pace with or set pace for the modern age.

It is symbolic that the site for the Festival of Britain is one of the bombed sections of London. There have been erected the show places in which will be displayed the achievements of a country reconstructing itself from the ravages of war. Among the exhibits will be some of the most outstanding examples of scientific progress, represented not only as pure science but as its achievements harnessed to the use of man.

No catalogue of displays will give a true picture of the Festival of Britain. No list of events scheduled on the program during the next few months will detail the essence of this demonstration to the world of British abilities. The spirit of the festival will be less tangible. It will be something sensed by visitors, something welling up from the past out of a magnificent history and carried forward into a dream of the future. It will be the indefinable strength of British people, their initiative, their resources and their steadfastness.

The Festival of Britain will take many forms. Its events will be widely varied. Yet it will never be described entirely in material terms. Its significance runs much deeper. It is an expression of the people and those who worked before them to achieve Britain's greatness.

Celebrating Canadianism Too

IN ADDITION TO THEIR VALUE AS entertainment, May 24 celebrations here have become an important tradition. This is Victoria Day and Victoria's Day in one. Coincidentally, the festivities occur the day after the date on which organizations throughout this country will observe special ceremonies symbolic of Canadian Citizenship.

The two occasions lend themselves admirably to co-ordination. New Canadians, or those about to become Canadians when they have established their qualifications, may find on May 24 an expressions of community spirit in which they will be required and privileged to share in the years ahead. How local sponsors of the citizenship event dovetail their activities with those of the celebrations-committee is a matter for the two agencies to determine. The opportunity is there if each cares to take it.

Such a procedure would conform to the pattern laid down for citizenship observation. If the ceremony is to accomplish its purpose, those assuming the rights and responsibilities of becoming Canadians must be impressed by the fact that they are accepted by people who have enjoyed those rights and shouldered the companion duties as full citizens for years.

Looking On From Outside

A VISITOR FROM ANOTHER planet might well be amazed at many of the things he saw here, but one which would have struck him yesterday would have been the spectacle of hundreds of thousands of workers supporting violently opposed ideologies yet celebrating the same cause—Labor.

In Europe the May Day contrast was especially noticeable. In Berlin, for instance, 600,000 men and women gathered in the Western sector to listen to their leaders. A mile away in the Russian sector 500,000 massed in another square for the same purpose. Both great crowds were observing the celebration of the rights of the workingman, yet their beliefs as to how to further his interests were poles apart.

In China it was the same. Chiang Kaishek watched a mile-long parade on Formosa. Mao Tse Tung watched a six-mile parade in Peking. There would have been a battle royal if the two parades could have met, yet ostensibly their objectives were the same. Well might a Martian have scratched his head in wonder. Well might we.

Dogwood In Bloom

ON THE FARMLANDS, BESIDE highways, in the woods and in some gardens, dogwood is offering the first of its treasures to all who will stand and look. There is a marvel of delicacy in its form, the waxen petals of its blooms displayed on slender shoots that lift from the branches. Yet it is not so much the shape of the tree, cloudlike in the distance, exquisite as fine grille work close at hand, that draws the eye. Rather is it the beauty of color contrast, shading from light green to pure white in petals against wood that is dark almost to blackness.

There is leaf, too, but the leaf seems to hold back, a proud partner anxious to see full homage done the blossom. Later the foliage will know its hour. When the first frosts of autumn have laid a policeman's hands on the leaves, urging them to hurry along, to hurry along, another transformation will take place. The dogwood will present its second treasure, a cloak of shimmering reds, running from rose to pear crimson.

Between times, the tree will wear its covering of green in summer; a cool bath for the eyes. But now it is the time of spring's triumph. The first of the dogwood's glories is displayed—a gift to all who have eyes.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

IN THESE days of inflation I know of only one security which never fails to appreciate, which always increases in value the more worthless it becomes.

To those who are looking about for some safe place to put their savings I recommend an investment which no honest broker would consider for a moment. I mean a broken-down cabin in the woods. The more broken down the better. By a law of economics unknown to economists, the poorer the cabin, the richer the owner will be.

There are a good many rich men knocking about Canada in these days of spring. You would never know it from their appearance. Their clothes are badly worn, their hands are rough with toil, their automobiles are likely to be falling to pieces and they generally lack the price of a bottle of whisky or the other bare necessities of life. But they own a camp and, therefore, they are rich.

I DO not refer to the unfailing interest payments of ruddy health, strong muscles and ravenous appetite. These are paid regularly to the camp owner and, strange to relate, are tax-free (but don't tell Doug Abbott lest he see a new chance of revenue). No, I am thinking of a secret dividend, paid in a coin of the realm beyond the grasp of governments—an inner contentment of the mind. And this may all be earned with practically no effort at all.

It is true, I admit, that the camp owner is always busy, especially at this season. He appears to be the slave of hammer, saw and paint brush. He will be observed mostly lying on his back under a battered boat, mending the leaks, or crawling on a half-rotten roof for the same purpose. He will be clad in rags, daubed with white lead or encrusted with the resins, juices and aromatic smells of the wood lot. But no camper ever works. He merely plays. His life is one long, gaudy revel.

THIS may seem work to ignorant persons but it earns no wages and this makes all the difference. A man who works for wages is working. A man who uses the same energy without wages obviously is playing or he wouldn't do it. That is why the camper, though he be exhausted and penniless after the week-end, is never really tired as a man will be after a couple of hours at the office or after a mere eight hours at the factory bench. The camper may collapse with fatigue, he may be unfit to earn his wages the following week, but he is not tired. He is merely drunk with glory. That form of drunkenness, under which half of Canada reels in the springtime, is about the only problem that we can hope to solve. We solve it by plunging into another week-end debauch on the lake shore.

THE drunker he is with this harmless, free and untaxed liquor, the richer the camper must become—and this though his camp steadily falls into worse repair the more he works on it. Don't ask him to explain the economics of this process. Enough that it is foolproof and works, which is more than you can say for the economics of commerce and government.

The only important thing is that as the cabin gradually collapses through the years, as the owner collapses with it, the price of his possession constantly rises in his own mind, which is the only place that matters. This, it will be noted, is the exact opposite of other investments, by which the owner is almost always growing poorer in the mind as his assets rise in the stock exchange. If you doubt that, observe the tortured faces in the brokers' offices, watching the latest stock quotations, and then the serene, gaunt and deeply-lined face emerging from under the rowboat. You will instantly distinguish the rich man.

THE injustice of our society is never so clearly revealed as in the bitter contrast between the poor man with large assets of money and the rich man with the worthless camp. Fortunately for the camper not even the Communists, the C.C.F., the Social Credit Party or any of the current reformers have yet detected the cruel inequality which endows the bankrupt owner of a lakeshore cabin with an undeserved opulence.

IN A just society, like that of Russia, for instance, the camp owner would be liquidated for daring to hoard within his mind an affluence which even Stalin has never known. Poor Stalin and his friends of the Politburo, most pitiable of human creatures, are provided with country estates by a grateful public but no one can make them rich, no one can save them from the direst poverty, simply because no one can put an axe, a hammer or a paint brush into their hands. They are barred forever from the wealth which a poor Canadian can buy for a few hundred dollars and support merely by giving up whisky, cigars and human society.

AND always at this time of year the big annual dividend rolls in, regardless of the state of the national economy. Always the camper walks down the trail for the first time in the spring, heavily laden with supplies, and looks up in amazement to see that the cabin, after all the storms of the winter, after all the follies of mankind, is still there, blinking in the sun and smiling a quiet welcome.

How many times has one lain awake in some luxurious bed thousands of miles away in a foreign city and wondered whether, in all the turmoil of what is called life but is not, the cabin can possibly have survived. Yet miraculously it is always there in the spring—a little leakier, dented somewhat by a fallen tree and yet more valuable with each season as the owner realizes that there are so few seasons left.

AGAINST ACTS

ON behalf of the wretched animals condemned to performing acts I should like to thank kind-hearted Mrs. Heywood for her letter, and you, Sir, for printing it in the Times on April 27.

CIRCUS ANIMALS

I quite agree with Lillian Heywood's remarks re Circuses. But I would like to remind her that in 1948 the Clyde Beatty Circus canceled its visit here after the Victoria S.P.C.A. had made public the fact that Clyde Beatty had been prosecuted for cruelty to animals in the United States.

During the years 1944 to 1949 the Victoria S.P.C.A. never lost an opportunity to distribute pamphlets against circuses during Animal Week, at the summer playgrounds, as well as exposing to the public through the medium of the Humane Bulletin the extreme cruelty to animals that prevails in these traveling shows—or in any circus for that matter.

The unnatural lives the animals have to live, cooped up in small cages, having to do their acts under constant threat of whips and other articles of torture, to say nothing of what these poor creatures had to go through when they were being trained, surely belongs to the dark ages. To make the excuse that children "like circuses" is poor indeed. I have found in talking to groups of children of this subject that they become very concerned and ask that the S.P.C.A. do something about it.

In 1937 the town council of Inverness, Scotland, banned traveling circuses and would not issue permits for or in any way encourage shows which include performing animals. Surely the Victoria City Council could follow that good example in humaneness? If all city councils and humane societies got together on this matter there would eventually be nowhere for them to go and so these cruel acts would die a natural death.

HOBBIES FOR YOUNGSTERS

Does Victoria care anything for its kids?

This year again I note that the Optimist Club held a "Youth Hobby

Show" and although I searched our papers with avid interest there was no write up, no list of winners or anything in any way encouraging to those kids who did enter their handicrafts.

We write and say much about so-called delinquents and pay lots of taxes for "homes" but what do we do to beat it to the draw?

Surely these kids are entitled to more encouragement. Their names as winners in the papers could mean a lot.

Vancouver has a P.N.E. and it is good. We have the opportunity to do something in Victoria, especially right after the winter when the hobbies are completed. Surely if people realized the inestimable value of a good hobby to a child and what new worlds it opens for all their senses, they would boost this show as strongly as they do the charitable organizations.

Why label them delinquent if we do not give them healthful things to think on and do?

SOCIAL CREDIT

Now that our political circus has first completed its latest "and we hope, one of its last" stands in Victoria, we are left breathless and aghast at its daring and unpopular performance but vastly cheered and inspired by the announcement that true Alberta-like Social Credit candidates will contest every constituency in British Columbia.

As an ex-Albertan myself and an ardent supporter of Premier Manning and his trustworthy, conscientious, efficient and above all truly Christian government, might I urge the people of B.C. in general and of the Esquimalt constituency in particular, both for their sakes and more especially for the growing generation to follow, to vote for their Social Credit candidate as an alternative to the C.C.F. or any other Socialist-inspired organization.

We have a marvelous province here, friends, in many respects superior to Alberta. Let us not spoil it and waste our resources by political suicide such as is threatened by a continuation of the money hungry and totally incompetent set-up now in office.

Playgrounds For The Children

There is a young children's playground on Lyall Street in Esquimalt, which is probably the most complete and varied young children's playground in Canada, for the reason that public parks seldom provide suitable equipment for small children and must of necessity build their playground equipment so large and strong that only children who are outgrowing its use can operate it.

Seven years ago the Municipality of Esquimalt set aside a piece of property 320 by 150 feet for a children's playground, and realizing the need in the absence of carpenters during the war the writer asked the municipality for some timbers to build swings for the children of the neighborhood. This started the program which in seven years has produced the present playground, with its swings, see-saws, slide, merry-go-round, swinging horses, basketball ring, softball backstop, sand boxes and other things to exercise and interest the children, each piece of equipment being designed for young children.

Five years ago at the request of Councillor Charles Banfield of Victoria, I had working plans prepared for the equipment as he desired to use them for a community playground in Victoria West. These sets of seven blue prints I have sold for actual cost, one dollar per set throughout the province from Port Alberni to Rossland and Princeton, including four sets asked for by recreation centres in Vancouver.

There has been an age limit of 12 years for children using the playground. Evidence of the constant use of the equipment is the way thousands of little feet have worn thin the boards of the stairs leading to the slide, and evidence also, as one mother said, of the thousands of pairs of pants the children have worn out.

This work was all done in my retirement after a lifetime in the service of the C.P.R.

I don't know how much longer I can continue to care for the playground and the children, but the work has been very rewarding to me in the pleasure the little children have had in its use.

In this motor age every community needs a young children's playground to attract the children away from the motor speedways which we call streets.

A Challenge To The Basic Plan

By STEWART ALSOP From Washington

THE threatened rupture of the Anglo-American alliance, dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

Stewart

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely based on atomic bombing of great population centres—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of Foreign Affairs.

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, "... will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

WILLING ALLIES?

The British argue—and Kennan would doubtless agree—that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. The brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities. Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon.

Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced the United States and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use the atomic bomb, in the most ruthless way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"THE air is so full of things these days," said the Elevator Man, "you never know what you're going to pick up. Flu germs, flying saucers—and maybe on a clear night Pittsburgh direct. Out of all that welter, it's hard to take in just what you do want and keep out all the rest. Somebody's always hovering in on things, serving you dishes that aren't on your menu. Take that mix-up in Philadelphia the other day, for example. The police station operator was getting calls from various patrol cars on the radio, dealing strictly with 'Car 14 going to Main Street,' 'Car 6 reporting an accident,' and so on, when suddenly a voice broke in with a song and jammed up the whole system. They figured somebody was having fun with a parked police car somewhere, but it just goes to show you there's no escape. Songs on the police radio, police calls on the symphony hour—it's a jumbled world. Going down!"

"There doesn't," said the Elevator Man, "seem to be much we can do about it. The principle of butting in has been too long established in the world to be cured very easily. And we all live so close together these days it's pretty hard to keep our lives separated. Even in our own homes, the fella next door may force himself on us, and you can't shut him up by turning a dial either. One fella took drastic action on this point, according to the story. He'd been bothered for months by his neighbor's radio. One day he went to him and said, 'I've got a little attachment here for your set.' 'Fine,' says the neighbor, 'I'm always glad to see some new gadget.' 'Well,' explains the first fella, 'it's a brick and a yard of rope, and the river's the second turning on the right.' Lower main!"

"We can't all," said the Elevator Man, "be as forthright. But there's one thing we can do. We can try to be the kind of neighbor who doesn't get that kind of an invitation."

Mail Service Defended

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Rinfret said Tuesday night that the postal service is "improving all the time." It was doing 23 per cent more business than "a few years" ago with a 5 per cent increase in staff.

He told a meeting of the Dominion executive of the Canadian Postmasters' Association that all charges against the Post Office Department will be "duly and peremptorily dealt with" when its estimates come before Parliament.

Referring to recent reductions in urban deliveries and hikes in some postal rates, he said there "is bound to be someone critical of these things, especially when it affects him."

HOME GARDEN

Today marks the commencement of the Victoria Garden Festival.

Jack

This is an annual four-day event sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society, during which 30 or more of Victoria's renowned private gardens are opened to the public.

The fame of this festival has spread far and wide, and each year beckons to connoisseurs, collectors, photographers and just plain gardeners. We mention the event in this column because it is such a golden opportunity for home gardeners to become acquainted with the vast possibilities which are open to them.

To the rock garden enthusiast, this festival is a living encyclopedia, not only of plants from all parts of the globe, but also of the ingenious ways in which natural rock formations have been adapted to the gardener's plan.

The new home owner, looking for material, is able to see the hundreds of flowering shrubs which may be used. And, what is of great importance, they can see them after 10, 20 or 30 years of growth.

Then there is the thrill of seeing such trees as Eucalyptus and the Acacias, and many other plants from tropical and sub-tropical lands, growing right here in our own city.

For the gardener interested in garden layout, there is much to be learned. The perennial borders show how to associate plant material; the use of plants for screens; the laying out of lawns and beds; the handling of a fruit and vegetable garden as part of the landscaping scheme; untold lessons to learn in each and every garden.

The reason, he told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C., Nanaimo), was that the Navy and Air Force "had perhaps a lesser feeling of responsibility for incurring expenses" than when they themselves had to pay for looking after the vehicles.

"They put in for repairs that were unnecessary," he said, "and they didn't take as good care of motor transport as they might have if they were financially responsible themselves."

The motor vehicle emerged as an issue on another front when members impaled a familiar figure on their parliamentary curiosities and indignation. He is the military officer who allegedly plays fast and loose with staff cars and other vehicles bought and run at government expense.

Army Not Now Charged With Motor Repairs

OTTAWA (CP)—The first big breach in the Defence Department's program of unification for the three forces has been disclosed.

C. M. Drury, Deputy Defence Minister, told the Commons public accounts committee Tuesday the Department has abandoned the experiment of having the Army generally made responsible for repair and maintenance of vehicles for all three forces.

The reason, he told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C., Nanaimo), was that the Navy and Air Force "had perhaps a lesser feeling of responsibility for incurring expenses" than when they themselves had to pay for looking after the vehicles.

"They put in for repairs that were unnecessary," he said, "and they didn't take as good care of motor transport as they might have if they were financially responsible themselves."

High Standard Marks Drama Festival Plays

By AUDRIY S.D. JOHNSON

Opening night of the fourth annual Victoria drama festival, Tuesday night at Victoria High School, resembled a final honor performance from the high standard of the three productions. Indications are that adjudicator, Gordon Davis, will have a difficult decision in choosing three honor plays for Saturday. The first session was opened with a brief address by Mayor Percy George.

Mr. Davis, who has had a distinguished career in the professional theatre in the United States, complimented those responsible for the arrangement of the program which he described as well balanced.

"THE DUCHESSE SAYS HER PRAYERS" By Mary G. Canfield. Presented by St. Barnabas Players - Madama Cecilia Gulerani, Carol Wootton, Lodya Spora (Duke of Earl), Ron Gilmore, Maurice d'Este, Mrs. Kay Foster, Director.

Mr. Davis said that the director had done a great deal of research into renaissance, costumes and styles of gesture and posture. He thought the simple stage setting of Gothic arch and towering candle sconces, attractive and "all that was necessary."

Mr. Davis complimented Carol Wootton on voice and movement and commended Kay Foster's handling of the long difficult speech in which the "duchess says her prayers."

"THE RIVALS" By Richard Brindley Sheridan. Presented by the Island Vagabonds. Lydia Langlois, Grace Turkey, Lucy (her maid), Carol MacCormac, Julia, Madeline, Sheila Edwards, Captain Absolute, H. E. Stubblings, Sir Anthony Absolute, Edith Gibson, Director.

Mr. Davis revealed his admiration for the play and particularly for "Mrs. Malaprop." He said that it was good to see a standard play of this type done in a festival.

As Mrs. Malaprop, Mrs. Gibson had shown clearly her experience and background. Mr. Davis had warm praise for all members of the cast.

"HARLEQUINADE" By Terence Rattigan. Presented by St. Luke's Players. Arthur Gosport, Charles Gilman, Edna Selby, Joan Walker, Johnnie, Albert Wallace, Daine Maud Gosport, Constance Wright, Jack Wakefield, Don Green, George Chudleigh, Charles Martin, Halberdier, Peter Peacock, Edna, Fitcher, Rosalie Chersman, Muriel Palmer, Jean Reid, Tom Palmer, Allan Anderson, Mr. Burton, Jack Croft, Billie Langland, Jack Croft, Policeman, Gwyn Owen, Fred Ingram, Ted Bouden, Director.

Mr. Davis expressed himself as having thoroughly enjoyed this comedy of a much interrupted rehearsal of "Romeo and Juliet."

It was well cast, well played and well directed, he felt. Mr. Davis complimented every member of the large cast, with special reference to Constance Wright, Charles Gibson, Joan Walker, Don Green and Billie Ritchie.

Intermission music was supplied by a trio consisting of Bernard Rain and Douglas Erikson, violinists, and Mary Cameron, pianist. The musical programs have been arranged by Dr. Rodger Manning, president of the Musical Art Society.

There will be four plays on the program tonight, starting at 8.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

What do you bid when your hand is too strong for one no-trump and too weak for two no-trump? Begin with one of a suit and make a jump rebid in no-trump at your next turn.

Suppose you don't get a second chance to bid? Suppose everybody passes your opening bid of one in a suit?

Nothing important has been lost. If your partner cannot respond to an opening bid of one, his hand is too weak to give you a sound play for game.

In today's hand, for example, South has just double the value of an average hand. He has two aces, two kings, two queens, two jacks and two tens. This is almost, but not quite, worth two no-trump; and it is too strong for one no-trump. Hence he opens with one club.

North can respond to the opening bid, whereupon South jumps to two no-trump. Now North can add the value of his own hand to the values shown by his partner. The sum is just about enough for game, so North goes on to three no-trump.

In the play, West opens a low spade, dummy plays low, and East properly finesesses the nine. South wins with the ten of spades and then—makes the correct play. Select the right play for yourself before you read on.

South leads the king of hearts.

Q—With neither side vulnerable the player at your right deals and bids one diamond. You hold: Spades A-Q-8-7, hearts K-J-9-4, diamond 5, clubs K-10-7-3. What do you do?

A—Double. This is, of course, a takeout double, asking your partner to bid his longest suit. You are ready to support whatever he bids.

at the second trick. In order to win nine tricks South must attack both hearts and clubs. It is vital to lead the hearts first.

If West refuses to take the ace of hearts, South must lead the suit once more. West will take the heart ace on the first or second round of the suit (otherwise South would switch at once to clubs) and will resume the spades.

South refuses to take his ace of spades until the third round of that suit. (In fact, if East had played the king of spades at the first trick, he would have been allowed to hold it.) Now South can take the club finesse in safety. Even though it loses, East cannot return a spade.

Note that South loses if he tackles the clubs at the second trick. East wins and returns the king of spades. The spades are thus established while West still has the ace of hearts as an entry.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Laughton Here Tonight

When the familiar figure of Charles Laughton lumbers onto the stage of Royal Theatre at 8.30 tonight, his arms overflowing with books, the audience will not know what to expect.

This is as it should be. Laughton himself admits that he never knows in advance what he will be bringing to an audience. One critic described Laughton's readings as a "combination of the Sunday comics, an act from 'Julius Caesar,' a roller-coaster ride and a trip through the Looking Glass."

Some people insist that Laughton has already committed to memory the selections he reads and that he uses the books merely as "props." On one occasion he was caught reading a long passage from Dickens with book held upside down.

Kefauver Hearings Have Movieland Repercussions

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver has made some changes here, too.

I'm not speaking in terms of real-life crime and corruption. But the crime-investigating senator from Tennessee has made Hollywood alter its thinking about gangster pictures.

Top --rank producer Edmund Grainger told me: "The Kefauver hearings had a tremendous impact on the public. People were able to see firsthand what gangsters really look like and how they operate. Now you can't fool them with anything phony."

"Initially, the hearings hurt the picture business, because people stayed home and watched their TV sets. But people are now more aware of and concerned about gambling and gangsterism."

TIN-TYPE TOUGH TABOO

Grainger said the movies used to portray criminals as tough-talking mugs. The Kefauver hearings showed many of them to be smooth characters who act like business men.

The Kefauver hearings proved a break for the producer, who was preparing a new version of the old play, "The Racket."

"I was having trouble with the Johnston office," said Grainger, referring to the industry's censors. "The play concerned the connection between the criminal element and politics. The office told me that the subject might be offensive, since corruption is limited to only a few localities."

"I tried to tell them that it was widespread. Then the Kefauver hearings came along and showed the connection of crime and politics in many areas. After that, I didn't have any trouble with the Johnston office."

SINKIANG PROVINCE IN CHINA FULL OF RUSSIANS

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—China's mineral-rich Sinkiang Province is virtually a Russian colony, its fugitive Nationalist governor said today.

Yolbars (Tiger) Khan, who arrived Tuesday, said the Soviet Consul-General at Tihwa is the Czar of the province. Yolbars said Chinese Communists who took over the province from the Nationalists were airlifted into Sinkiang in Russian planes.

He said there are 20,000 Russian soldiers in Sinkiang.

U.S. Mobilization Chief Sees British Ministers

Raw Material Shortages Topic Of Meeting; Britons To Assure Wilson Program Pushed

LONDON (AP)—Charles E. Wilson, American defence mobilization chief, conferred today with Cabinet ministers responsible for Britain's £4,700,000,000 ($13,865,000,000) three-year arms program.

Principal points of discussion were:

1. Progress of this year's British arms program of £1,300,000,000.
2. Allocation of scarce raw materials to Britain to ensure that rearmament can be carried out; and
3. Dovetailing the rearmament plans of the United States, Britain and other countries of the North Atlantic Pact.

British ministers attending the talks included the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell; R. R. Stokes, Lord Privy Seal, whose special responsibility is the raw materials problem; Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell; Sir Hartley Shawcross, new President of the Board of Trade, and Supply Minister George Strauss.

Britain's Labor government is just recovering from an upheaval inside the cabinet over the arms program.

The ministers are expected to assure Wilson that, despite the revolt of the cabinet left-wingers, Britain is pushing ahead with the program.

In return, Wilson is expected to soothe as far as possible British fears over raw-material shortages.

AUSSIE MINERS STRIKE OVER SUSPENSION

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Twenty-three coal mines were idle in northern New South Wales today following the suspension of an electrical fitter who refused to carry out certain work.

Members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union struck in support of him.

The strike cost about 14,440 tons of coal today.

Reports from the coalfields said moves were being made for a resumption of one-day stoppages which cut coal production by one-fifth several weeks ago.

VICTORIAN SPRING

LXXIV

The room they had allotted to Mr. Finkel was the biggest in the hotel. It was a bay-windowed front room that would, serve, also, throughout the week's engagement, as a meeting place for his company. It was serving that purpose now.

Mr. Finkel had called the meeting to explain that owing to possible difficulties with the police, the troupe's engagement would start on the morrow, and not tonight as had been expected. He had made that explanation, however, an hour ago, and both champagne and whiskey had been flowing in fast-increasing quantity since then.

The air was thick with cigar smoke—and with the powerful perfume used by some of the noisier of the women who were present. Seventeen members of the traveling company were there, and gradually more and more miners who had come with them in the same ship, and had already learned something of their predicament, had drifted into the meeting too.

It had started in an orderly manner, with Finkel standing quietly in front of them, an arm on the mantelpiece, and his audience seated in chairs and sofas all over the room. But feelings had grown hotter as the drinks were passed. The entire crowd was being swayed, now, by Sadie Ellishaw—a big-busted, blousy woman with a solid mass of brown curls beneath which shone a pair of very noticeable gypsy earrings. She was already wearing one of her dresses for the show, a fact which added considerable point to her words.

She was a strong woman, but with a curiously blue and unhealthy look about her face, despite the theatrical make-up which covered it. There were unmistakable rings around her eyes, and lines about the chin which could only have come with many years of unchecked dissipation. She was standing by a tall, mahogany sideboard, and at moments as she spoke, she unconsciously swayed very slightly forward and outward into the room. The champagne glass she held was in constant danger as she brought it repeatedly down on the sideboard to emphasize her point.

... and it's no use sitting around like a flock of deaf mutes just thinking about it! We were cheated out of two days' pay in Frisco because of the epidemic. We lost more cash in Seattle because of that dress swindle. And what I say is, if we've got a manager worth calling one, he'll stop in and stop us being cheated out of another day's pay in Victoria! But what does he do, boys and girls? What does the inebriated... the drunken buzzard do but sit there and let us lose our rightful dollars under his ruddy nose?"

"Shame!"—it was another drunken feminine wail, now—"Kick some action into him, Sadie. You had to buy that new dress yourself—so he deserves it, anyway!"

"Can't stand on his own two feet, see! Fuddled! What's the good of a manager that can't manage? A nice tale to tell old man Bailey when he gets back to us!"

"If he gets back, Lou!"—it was one of the men, this time, with a dry and significant laugh.

Finkel, more or less in an alcoholic stupor by this time, had caught the name "Bailey" and now endeavored to rouse himself.

"I'd like to remind you, ladies, that if there's going to be any tattling to Mr. Bailey, there's one or two other things he'd like to hear also."

One of the minstrels'butted in with: "Don't waste your time on him, girls!" He shouted through the considerable cross-chatter that had risen by now, and above which he had to raise his voice to be heard at all. The noise could be distinctly heard outside by this time—so more and still more miners were coming in off the street to add to it.

KI MING MAKES 1,000-1 BET LOOK MIGHTY GOOD

NEWMARKET, Eng. (Reuters)—Ki Ming today won the Two Thousand Guineas, first of Britain's five annual classic horse races.

Owned by Billy Ley On, a wealthy Chinese restaurant owner in London, Ki Ming won by one and one-half lengths from Sir V. Sassoon's colt Stokes; H. E. Elvin's Malka's Boy was third by a head.

Ley On has a 1,000-1 bet on Ki Ming for the Derby May 30, the blue ribbon classic of the flat season. If Ki Ming wins the Derby, Ley On stands to win $61,000 for an outlay of $61.

The French colt Damtar, favorite in today's race, was prominent early on but faded.

Views Of Sport

By RED SMITH

NEW YORK—While the Giants fiddle and Durocher burns, while the Red Sox dawdle in the starting gate and the mighty Pirates and the Cubs punish the opposition with unexampled cruelty—while in short, the major leaguers totter through the early stages of life on legs as unsteady as a new-born colt's, a baseball event of major importance has taken place unnoticed by Frick, Harridge or Chandler.

The first baseball season ever attempted in all of Egypt's echoing centuries has opened, and closed, on the fledgling green banks of the Nile. It was, reports Dean Hussein Kamel Selim Bey, ripping.

Hussein Kamel Selim Bey, the sporting dean of the Faculty of Commerce of Fouad I University, is a regular big buster of a guy with a wrestler's muscles and a boy's enthusiasm. A visitor in New York last fall, he got to see some ball games, went overboard for the sport and resolved to introduce it in his homeland. Now he writes:

"Soon after my return last Dec. 1, I told my 4,000 students about the game and found them enthusiastic. I bought for them all the equipment to be found in the sports shops in Cairo and paid about $300, but the stuff proved to be of poor quality.

Dr. Mohamed Gave Medals

"About the coach, I found an American student in the University, Mr. John Boles, willing to help and he soon got me five Marines from the United States Embassy. They volunteered to train (free) about 80 students twice a week, starting early in January.

"The enthusiasm of the boys and their natural ability for the game surprised the coaches. It turned out that we have a popular game amongst the peasants not unlike baseball in principle," called Malkam.

"My object was not only to train my students, but to popularize the game, so I arranged, late in February, for a display game at the University stadium between two American teams from the Embassy and the Trans-World Airlines. It went down well with the spectators.

"When I put on the big show, I issued over 3,000 invitations to all sorts of important people, diplomats, Cabinet ministers, school principals, sporting clubs, the press, radio, newsreels, etc. There was a marvelous turnout, including Azzam Pasha; the United States Ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, who gave medals to the Egyptian team; the Foreign Minister, Dr. Mohamed Saleh el Din Bey, to give medals to the American side, and many others."

Soccer Garb No Handicap

One of the Dean's four university teams played a squad from the United States Embassy on the grounds of the Mo'Allamin Club, the Egyptian Teachers Club in suburban Gezira. The Dean tossed out the first ball, there was a band from the government orphanage, a running description in Arabic came chattering from a loudspeaker and was recorded for subsequent broadcasts by the Voice of America.

The Dean sent photographs. In one a valiant Egyptian catcher with an infielder's glove and an unpadding soccer uniform—shorts and convict-striped jersey—is springing into the sky for a wild pitch that would stir Rex Barney's envy.

"For Egyptian spectators," the Dean writes, "I printed the regulations in Arabic and distributed them all around. The game soon will be shown in the newsreels in the Cairo cinemas. I feel sure baseball has been properly introduced to the Egyptian public and its future will depend on the merits of the game itself. Already many university faculties, the Royal Military College and many secondary schools, are clamoring for it out of jealousy of my boys. That's good.

Rained Out—In Egypt!

"Our trouble now is lack of equipment and coaches. As regards the former, some sporting firms in the U.S. are willing to supply us gratis next year provided we pay for transportation. Splendid, eh!"

"For a coach I believe I shall get for the whole university (20,000 students) a professor of physical education under the Fulbright Act, i.e., free! I have found the staff of the United States Embassy most kind and helpful; the Ambassador himself is charming."

Because of approaching examinations, there was time for only one game during the academic year. In fact, it was an even shorter season than the Dean had planned, due to a circumstance unforeseen in a land of perpetual and sometimes punishing sunshine.

After five innings, with the American team leading 11 to 6, the game was rained out.

Dick! Where Wert Thou?

A's Pitching Fails As Tribe Takes Second Win

By BILL WALKER

When and if Dick Barrett decides to take up pitching in addition to his managerial duties, two gentlemen will be very much relieved.

The two gentlemen are president Johnny Johnson and general manager Reg Patterson of the Victoria Athletics.

Not that they have said so, mind, but a few seconds in the A's general office last night would convince anyone just what thoughts these same two gentlemen were harboring.

It all stemmed from last night's second defeat of the A's at the hands of the Spokane Indians, 9 to 8.

The situation that presented itself in the ninth inning of this particular loss—the A's seventh of the season as against three wins—screamed out loud for a man of Barrett's capabilities.

The situation was this: The A's had come from behind 3 to 0 and 7 to 6 deficits to take a one-run lead entering the final frame.

Bill Osborn, second of four Victoria hurriers, had gone out for pinch-hitter Milt Martin in the eighth, Martin obliging by crashing a two-run homer to give the A's their slim 8 to 7 margin. Then Jim Propst was called-in to preserve the verdict but Propst isn't what might be classed as a relief artist.

His stay was extremely short. He walked Ed Nutty to start the inning and then gave up a single to Ken Richardson and a double to Steve Mesner. That was the ball game.

What is implied is that here was the spot for a relief pitcher de luxe, something the A's sorely lack at the moment, and Barrett is the man who was expected to fill that void.

BIG JOHN WILD

Until then it looked like the A's were going to console a shivering crowd of 500 by pulling that saw-John Marshall out every thing but walk the Indians right out of the park.

All Marshall did in the first inning was to walk six men and give up base hits to Edo Vanni and Mel Wasley. That he got out of the jam with only three runs is something one had to see to believe.

After that he settled down and blanked the tribe until the seventh. Meanwhile, the A's got to Spokane starter Jim Holder for two unearned runs in the fifth and finally chased him from the hill with a four-run outburst, featured by Gene Thompson's double and Tom O'Laughlin's single in the sixth.

MORE TROUBLE

Leading 6 to 3, Marshall again weakened long enough for the Indians to tie it up in the seventh. Mesner accounted for most of the damage with a two-run double, Jim Wert banging home the tying marker.

Successive doubles by Eddie Murphy and Vanni put the tribe on top for the second time in the inning. Propst 2, Off Holder 9 and 6 runs in 3 1/2 innings; Worth 1 and 3 runs in 1 1/2 innings; Marshall 10 and 7 runs in 1 1/2 innings; Osborn 6 and 6 runs in 1 1/2 innings; Noyes 6 and 6 runs in 1 1/2 innings. Struck out: By Holder 2, Worth 2, Noyes 1, Marshall 9. On base: Off Holder 2, Worth 3, Marshall 8, Propst 2. Passed ball, Marshall. Left on bases: Spokane 10, Victoria 6. Home run: Martin. Two-base hits: Thompson, Mesner (2), Murphy, Vanni. Runs batted in: Mesner (5), Wert (2), O'Laughlin (2), Vanni, Martin (2), sacrifice: Gaviglio (2). Double plays: Gaviglio-Dunn-Jackson, Mesner-Brown-Wert (2), Jackson-Dunn. Time: 2:44. Umpires: Jacobs and Behringer.

Wests Suffer Worst Defeat In 50 Years

The sinking sun, a contrary breeze; the overlapping, sport seasons, and a sharp determined Esquimalt soccer eleven combined last night to hand Victoria West a right royal 9 to 0 lacing, one of the worst in Wests' 50-year career. Along with the trimming went elimination from the Province Cup play. Last night's game was a replay of Saturday's 1 to 1 tie for the right to meet Victoria United in the final this week-end.

Wests were minus Chick Newman, Bernie Clarkson and Doug Hudlin, all out playing softball; Len Scott, who was working out with the Shamrocks, and Murray Speller. Taking the field with 10 men—one of them captain Ron Bland playing with an injured knee cap—Wests lost the toss and kicked into the teeth of a chill wind during the first half, with the setting sun in their eyes.

ONE-A-MINUTE

The initial Esquimalt goal came in the first minute of play, with Bill Walker punching it home.

Barely a minute later, Gordie Duncan made it 2 to 0 and slammed in a third when Norm Richards failed to clear after a shot by Roy Speller. Within 10 minutes Wests were down 3 to 0, before the end of the half it was 6 to 0.

The second half failed to bring any respite. Esquimalt had more trouble working the ball in against the wind, but were able to add three more tallies before the end, the last one going in off the boot of Wests' Burdge after Ron Bland had stopped a driving shot from Nip Sage. The crippled Bland went in the nets early in the half, sending Norm Richards to the fullback line.

Manager Doug Gent, who played a tremendous defensive game for Wests, said that his team will probably default the

Rocks Ready For Indians

Team Confident As Boxla Season Gets Away Tonight

There was a confident air in the Victoria Shamrocks' dressing room after their light workout last night—confident, but not cocky.

"We're as ready as we can be," said coach Arnie Ferguson. "I'm making no predictions, but the boys have been practicing hard and are in good shape for the first game."

Goalie Bill Andrews grinned a happy grin as Dusty Mair massaged his slightly swollen hand. "If our fellows slam them at Grover the way they've been shooting at me," he said, "well, I'm glad I'll be at the other end."

Ferguson has no changes to make in his line-up for the season's boxla opener, with the North Shore Indians at the Memorial Arena tonight. Andrews will be in goal, with Len Scott and Ferguson on one defence string, Red McMillan and Norm Coates on the other.

Duff McCaghey, Ed Popham and Art Green will form one front-line combination, with Norm Baker, Whitey Severson and Archie Browning the alternating line. Darrell Popham and either Tom Druce or Harry Irwin will play the rover positions.

DICKINSON ON BENCH

Certain to please Victoria lacrosse fans was the announcement today that Indians' coach Bill Dickinson intends to stay on the bench, at least during the early part of the season. The heady veteran of Vancouver boxla was responsible in large part for many heart-stilling moments in the Indians-Shamrocks semifinal series last year.

Offsetting any joy on that score, however, is the news that the two Crema brothers, Mario and Larry, are united this year, both playing rover with the Redskins.

Mario was one of Richmond's stars last year. This is Larry's second year with Indians.

JOSEPH BACK

Another development calculated to make the opener no sinecure for the Rocks is the signing of Stan Joseph as goalie for the Indians again this year.

Until late last week, Joseph had been conspicuous by his absence at Redskin workouts and two possible replacements had been tried.

Coach Bill Dickinson of the Indians was happier about tonight's opening tilt when Joseph finally turned up, after vacillating between Vancouver and Nanaimo. Vic Grover has been named netminder for the game, but Joseph will be on hand.

Dickinson's announcement that he would not play himself came as a surprise, and is taken as an indication that the veteran has every confidence in his starting line-up.

In front of Grover will be defencemen Jacky Byford, Bill Harris, Alf Brenner and Cy Anderson. Centremen are Lucien Lowe and the aggressive playmaker Glen Johnson. In the forward ranks Dickinson has Marino Cervi, Roy Burton, Doug Hull, Bill Stuart and Bob Gorlie. Bo Bradford is utility man.

Season ticket sales and box office activity during the past two days indicates a jammed house at the Arena tonight. Game time is 8.30.

Government Rejects Move For Tax On Capital Gain

Opposition Members Continue Attack On Increase In Sales Tax; Senate Resumes

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition members in the Commons Tuesday renewed their campaign against a budget resolution increasing the general sales tax to 10 per cent from 8 per cent.

F. D. Shaw (S.C.-Red Deer, Alta.) described the tax as one which "goes right into the pockets of the poorest man in the land." It was the "poor man's income tax."

Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) said he believed the increased excise taxes alone would add $40 or $50 a year to family expenditures on essentials.

Earlier, on a motion to go into supply, a brief debate on the government's monetary policies developed when John Blackmore (S.C.-Lethbridge) criticized the administration for not using powers over currency to issue so-called "debt-free money."

Ross Thatcher (C.C.F.-Moose Jaw) suggested that a capital gains tax would eliminate the need for increases in the sales and excise taxes.

Mr. Sinclair, Parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said the United States found a capital-gains tax very difficult to administer. He believed that the chief objection to a similar tax in Canada was the great need for venture capital to develop the resources of this country.

J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox-Alberni) wondered if the government had considered leaving the sales tax at 8 per cent and making it apply to everything.

Mr. Sinclair said the tax was steadily removed from a wide variety of articles at the request of many groups.

Finance Minister Abbott brought down a supplementary estimate of $2,000,000 to provide $40-a-month supplementary payments to unemployment veterans to help them meet the cost of living.

The government moved to extend civilian job protection to some members of the armed forces besides the special Korean force. The extension applies to members of the reserve forces joining the active services for three-year terms.

DOCTOR HAD BETTER TAKEN OWN MEDICINE

LAWRENCEVILLE, Va. (AP)—Dr. C. A. Thomas addressed a study group Tuesday on safety in the use of firearms.

On his way home, Dr. Thomas bought a BB gun to use in chasing dogs away from his garbage cans.

The gun failed to work, so Dr. Thomas returned the weapon and demonstrated its failings to the store clerk.

A doctor removed from Dr. Thomas' finger the pellet that lodged there when the gun suddenly discharged.

MUST BUY LICENSES

SAWDUST TO BURN

Dealers Forced To Dump Fuel

Fir sawdust, worth between $3 and $5 a unit, is being dumped daily in Victoria because mills are producing more than customers can use.

"We have to dump," one dealer explained. "Nobody wants sawdust at this time of year so what else can we do?"

Another sawdust distributor

Dumping of sawdust has come to be a regular thing during the summer months, during periods of high production and little demand. The need for dumping has come earlier this year, however, because sawdust users burned less fuel than usual during the comparatively mild winter.

Sawdust distributors are required to keep the mills free from sawdust whether they can sell the sawdust or not.

By PENNY SAVER

Said a busy shopper to a clerk, this morning, "I'll have 2 pounds of watermelon, a pineapple, a canteloup, and a special treat for the family, a coconut."

No she wasn't standing on a street corner in Hawaii, checking her shopping list, she was shopping about in our own fair city of flowers and sunshine.

If it had so pleased the good woman, she could have asked for cobs of corn, Valencia oranges or a bunch of Australian grapes.

For the watermelon, she paid, 15 pennies a pound, canteloups from 20 cents up, coconuts about some time, arrived this week along with the first-of-the-season California Valencia oranges.

Winesaps continue to sell in crunching good form at 3 pounds for 32 cents... potatoes, also in excellent form, brand new and 5 pounds for 25 cents.

Sliding down the price scale like a five-year-old on a shute the shute, are asparagus in pound lots, for 19 cents.

Down, with a plunk, are prices on tins of frozen orange juice. Sitting for months on end at 37 cents a tin, they're now down to 33 cents. Another brand was selling at 29 cents.

Tasty English cucumbers, as popular as ever, and 25 pennies each, to buy... carrots in 2 bunch bundles, 25 cents, same price for two pounds of short stock rhubarb.

Have been hearing many interesting comments on a quick-as-a-bunny supper dish. Rice a la Spanish style with addition of tomato puree, onions, sweet red and green peppers, cheese and spices. Two of 20 cents pays for a 15-ounce tin that makes handsomely serving for two... not the tin, mind, but the rice!

While shopping 'round town last week I happened to see a seemingly gorgeous cake sitting in a bake shop window. Caramel and marshmallow, my dears, with more marshmallow filling between the fluffy double layers of the cake. All this good eating for, if you'll pardon the expression, 70 cents.

Cut fat edges of steaks, chops, ham slice to prevent curling.

35 cents each... big brutes, they are... corn-on-the-cob, 3 for 25 pennies, might be less than that by the end of the week, and Australian grapes, 36 cents a pound.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Involved In Illicit Romance;
Seen By Friend Who Gossiped

Dear Mary Haworth: Two couples were inseparable friends for several years. Through the close association and happy times, the husband of one couple and the wife of the other couple became emotionally involved. They did not realize the state of affairs themselves until they felt the distress of their respective mates.

In order to have a sincere talk alone, they took a long ride one day. They decided they could never find happiness except as four friends. However, while on the ride, they were seen by a third couple, also quite close friends. This third couple immediately went to the wife of the involved man. The wife had a nervous breakdown, the husband started drinking, and the friendship was shaken to its foundations.

After a lapse of time the friendship has proved itself and the four are friends again. But will you kindly analyze the third couple's actions? Wouldn't real friends have gone to the involved pair, instead of carrying gossip to the innocent wife? Wasn't this act indicative of a deep-seated desire to destroy the enviable friendship between the two couples? A. P.

COMPLAINANT
ISN'T HONEST

Dear A. P.: I assume that you are the erstwhile errant wife in the quartet; and it seems you are blindly selfish nowadays, just as you were in leading your bosom friend's husband astray. You are dishonestly wide-eyed about your mischief—as, for instance, in claiming you didn't realize that philandering was afoot until you and the disloyal husband felt the distress of your respective mates; and later, in blaming damage to friendship on those who gossiped about you, instead of realizing that your treacherous self-indulgence was the disruptive factor, which boomeranged and gave you a bad time. WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Ten Pounds Can Make
Or Break Your Figure

Why let those 10 pounds lie and lie and lie—on you and about you?

Ten pounds can make the difference between a lean torso and that little roll over the girdle, between a flat tummy and a pad of fat on the abdomen, between a smooth thigh-line and a lumpy one, between a slight double chin and no double chin. It can make you look five or more years older. It can make the difference between self-consciousness and self-confidence.

So far as weight is concerned, in my mind, women fall into three classes; those who are underweight, those who remain the same weight year after year, with little or no effort on their part (lucky you), and those who have to fight overweight. The latter class is divided into two groups: those who have allowed themselves to become very much overweight; those who make it a point to lose a few pounds whenever the scales show that they are eight to 15 pounds overweight. They hover around 10 pounds too much.

I think this latter group is in the majority, and in a way, it is the most frustrating group because the women in this group are so close to having a really lovely figure that just a little push would give them a number one figure rating.

Actually, these women who have never been very fat are as conscious of their 10 pounds, perhaps more conscious, than are those who have been conditioned to more overweight.

Don't continue to hover about that 10 pounds (away from the perfection mark).

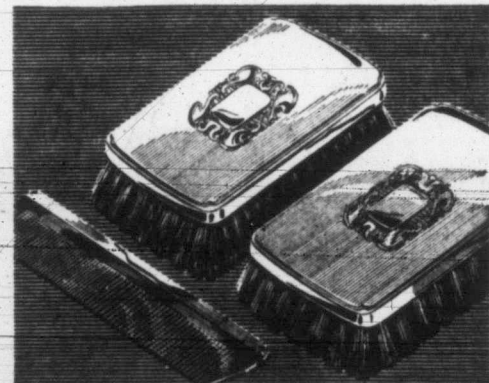

This week I am giving you my nine-day reducing diet which will give you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in nine days' time. Today I am printing Wednesday's diet.

You have today's menu on the nine-day reducing diet from yesterday's column. I am giving you the menus one day in advance so you may plan your meals. Here is what you are to eat tomorrow.

Pre-Nuptial Party Dates Continue For Miss Fraser

Shower party dates continue to fill the pre-nuptial days of May-time bride-elect Miss Pamela Fraser.

Last evening, Miss Marjorie Wride entertained at a linen shower at her home on Nottingham Road. On arrival the honor guest received gardenias en corsage and found many beautiful gifts concealed in a miniature wishing well. Buffet refreshments were served. Guests numbered 25.

Earlier this week Mrs. E. R. Jackson, Mrs. W. Granfield and Miss Bim Jackson, honored Miss Fraser at a kitchen shower at Miss Jackson's apartment. Gifts, arranged in a novel effect, were tied with ribbons and suspended from bars of a clothes rack. The honor guest also received a corsage bouquet of fragrant carnations. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. W. A. Fraser, was presented with iris and stephanotis en corsage. Slender lady slippers set in moss created the centerpiece on the refreshment table. Guests numbered 30.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milligan left this afternoon for New York where they will sail May 8, for England. They expect to return in four months.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Scott, who have spent the past nine months in Victoria, staying at Clive Apartment Hotel, left yesterday for their home at Indian Head, Sask.

Mrs. John M. Collingford and Mrs. Stanley Fell went by plane to Seattle at the week-end to visit Mrs. Collingford's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hershel T. Harding.

Mrs. W. T. Lawrie, Beach Drive, and her elder daughter Betty, left today for New York, where they will sail aboard the Queen Elizabeth for Great Britain to visit friends and relatives. They plan to return in three months.

A miscellaneous shower to honor Miss Agnes Wright, a bride-elect of this month, was given recently when Mrs. R. S. Martindale entertained at her Wilmet Place home. The honor guest was presented with a gardenia en corsage. Mrs. A. Wright, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. W. De Gruchy, the groom-elect's mother, also received corsage bouquets. Guests were Mesdames J. T. Down, J. A. Jones, D. F. O'Leary, G. Tuson, F. Wright, L. Wright, Misses Irene Godfrey and Lillian Davies.

Victoria Day Cake

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Grace Boudard would like to see a Victoria Day cake on sale in every Canadian bakery for May 24. Representative of a large mill-representing company, she said today that possibilities are "almost limitless" for such special events cakes.

She told delegates to the Canadian Baking Exposition: "There should be cakes for special days and occasions like Victoria Day, Dominion Day, after-the-rugby-game parties, graduation parties—and even canasta parties. Why, there could be no end of them."

Sees Bigger Spot For Women In Country's Public Life

CALGARY—(CP)—Two prominent bachelors who guided Canadian affairs of state for a long time have been blamed for the lack of women in the country's political life.

The accused: The late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and the late Viscount Bennett. The accuser: Mrs. Evelyn Tufts of Ottawa, resident correspondent in the parliamentary Press Gallery for 15 years.

"They never had a chance to get acquainted with women and they didn't appreciate them, but we may do a lot better from now on," the still blonde grandmother said on a recent visit.

She noted the late President Roosevelt had a woman as Minister of Labor in his cabinet. He also appointed the first woman diplomat, Mrs. Ruth Owen, to Denmark.

This placing of confidence in women by President Roosevelt she believed, was due largely to the fact he had as his wife a most outstanding woman who set a pattern of public service few American women have equalled.

INDIA ON THE MARCH

Mrs. Tufts wondered why we we sent missionaries to India. She thought it should be the other way about.

"We haven't got anywhere near the position Indian women

Mrs. Arthur Sager who has been on this coast for the past four months will leave tomorrow afternoon aboard R.M.S. Aorangi for her home in Wellington, N.Z. Mrs. Sager visited her sister, Mrs. Fred Goode of Prince Rupert, who this week has moved to Port Alberni. She has also been staying with relatives in Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle.

A miscellaneous shower was held recently in honor of Miss Grace Worthy, May bride-elect. Hostess was Mrs. Dan Pearmain, in her Kathleen Street home. Gifts were concealed in a pink and white decorated boat. The guest of honor received a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and her mother, Mrs. W. L. Worthy, red carnations. Mrs. Norman Duckworth sang a wedding prayer. Refreshments table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a low cut glass bowl of carnations. Mrs. Worthy presided and Mrs. Duckworth assisted with serving. Guests numbered 18.

Married In St. Paul's Garrison Church Newlyweds Now Motoring Up-Island

Motoring on this island on a honeymoon trip are the new Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Charles Bulmer, who were united in marriage by Rev. A. Hendy in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church at Esquimalt.

The bride is the former Mary Ethel Williams, daughter of Mrs. Rachael Williams, 1343 Esquimalt Road, and the late Edward Williams, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bulmer, 488 Nelson Street.

A floral background of spring flowers in shades of mauve, yellow and white, was setting for the bride in her wedding gown of filmy white nylon marquisette over whisper taffeta.

have achieved in public life and yet we look upon them as backward and send missionaries to them. I think they should send missionaries over here to educate us," she said.

Mrs. Tufts, the wife of a retired public servant, has represented her paper—the Halifax Chronicle-Herald—in Ottawa for the last fifteen years.

She recently returned from a six months assignment in Italy Germany and Yugoslavia. During the last few months she has interviewed maritime troops in Canada's special force training at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Most Perfect Nose In America

NEW YORK (UP)—The most perfect nose in America belongs to Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, the nation's magazine photographers decided today.

Because "no girl is a perfect model," members of the American Society of Magazine Photographers selected the most attractive feature of 10 American women for a composite of the "most alluring American girl."

Martin Harris, executive secretary of the society, said Mrs. MacArthur was chosen for her nose because it was "completely unobtrusive" and blended perfectly with her other facial features.

The nine other women and that part of their anatomy that went into the composite were:

Most perfect bosom, Jane Russell; most perfect legs, Linda Darnell; most perfect chin, Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller; most perfect hips, Rita Hayworth; most perfect ears, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg; most perfect eyes, Kathi Norris; most perfect thighs, Esther Williams; most perfect mouth, Elizabeth Taylor; most perfect hair, Brenda Frazier Kelly.

Golden brown broiled salmon steaks topped with a good-tasting sauce are a most delicious entrée. Combine a sour cream with chopped ripe olives and chopped parsley with a dash or two of lemon juice and serve on the hot fish.

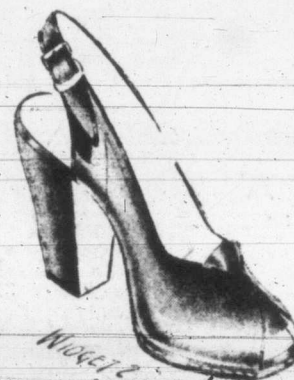

Vancouver Wedding Of Interest Here

A June wedding of interest in Victoria, where the bride is well known, is presaged in the formal announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. F. Martin Wallace of West Vancouver of the engagement of their younger daughter, Moira, to Mr. James Dormer McCarthy, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo F. McCarthy of Portland, formerly of Winnipeg and Vancouver. The marriage will be solemnized at 2 on the afternoon of Saturday, June 9, in St. Stephen's Anglican Church in West Vancouver, with Rev. E. W. P. Carter officiating. A garden reception will follow at the waterfront home of the bride-elect's parents.—(R. H. Marlow Photo)

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

No greater blessing life affords Than faithfulness of loving friends.—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Reddy Fox had made up her mind. It hadn't been made up in a hurry. Mrs. Reddy would tell you that there is nothing more foolish than to make up one's mind in a hurry in a matter of real importance. Nothing leads to so many bad mistakes as unnecessary hurry. So Mrs. Reddy had been slow to decide that she and Reddy should move from the Old Pasture and dig a new home some distance away. It was a trap that had decided her. It was the third one that she and Reddy had found recently in the Old Pasture near their home. She had almost stepped in this one. It was just good luck that its cruel steel jaws had not snapped together on one of her legs. She had uncovered that trap and sprung it by slipping a paw under it and flipping it over. She had shivered at the ugly sound of those wicked jaws when they had snapped together on nothing. The Old Pasture would no longer be a safe place in which to bring up a family of lively young cubs.

While she waited for Reddy's return she made up her mind. "We are going to move, and the sooner the better," she announced as soon as Reddy was near enough to hear her. She didn't notice the happy grin on Reddy's sharp face.

Reddy paid no attention to her. "My dear, I have some good news," he barked.

"And I have some bad news," retorted Mrs. Reddy. "We have got to move right away."

"He is back!" barked Reddy. There was no mistaking the joy in his voice.

"We can't put it off any longer. Today I found—" She stopped to stare at Reddy. "What did you say?" she demanded.

"I said he is back. At least that is what I have heard," barked Reddy.

"I'll believe it when I see him," declared Mrs. Reddy.

"Then you can believe it right now," declared Reddy. He had turned and was looking off across the dear Old Briar-patch. He was small in the distance, but both Reddy and Mrs. Reddy had watched him so often through other years that they knew they were not mistaken.

The worried look left Mrs. Reddy's sharp face. For the moment she forgot her troubles as side by side they watched Farmer Brown's boy as he visited the dear Old Briar-patch. They saw him stop at Johnny Chuck's house. Johnny had sat on his doorstep until Farmer Brown's boy was almost to him, then shown him a pair of black heels as he ducked down inside his house.

They saw Peter Rabbit kick up his heels and dodge into the dear Old Briar-patch, his white tail bobbing up and down only a few feet in front of Farmer Brown's boy.

"I wish Peter would let us get as near him as that," grinned Reddy, and Mrs. Reddy grinned back.

"Do you suppose he will come over here," said Mrs. Reddy.

"Of course he will," declared

They saw him stop at Johnny Chuck's house.

Reddy. "He will want to know how things are up here in the Old Pasture."

The worried look returned to Mrs. Reddy's face. "I hope so," said she.

"He will. Of course he will," repeated Reddy confidently.

But a few minutes later Farmer Brown's boy turned as if to go over to the Smiling Pool. Reddy watched for a moment, then barked. It was a sharp, anxious bark. Farmer Brown's boy turned to look that way. Reddy barked again. It was a little sharper, and little more anxious-sounding than before.

Farmer Brown's boy started straight for the Old Pasture and on his freckled face was a smile. He understood those two barks perfectly. "Don't worry, Reddy. I'm coming to see you," said he, but of course Reddy couldn't hear him. He barked once more. It was a different bark, a happy bark. It was the Old Pasture's welcome back to Farmer Brown's boy, to a tried-and-proven and trusted friend.

TODAY'S RECIPE

BAKED CORN CREOLE

Two tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, if desired, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, dash pepper, 2 cups drained, canned, whole-kernel corn, 1 10-oz. can condensed cream of tomato soup, undiluted.

Saute onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Combine with remaining ingredients. Pour into French casseroles. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

Soft fluffy scrambled eggs with pale green balls of avocado folded in just before serving make a delicious party luncheon or brunch entree. You can serve crisp bacon curls with it too if you like. The secret is in cooking the eggs slowly and until they are thickened but not firm. Then add the avocado which you scoop out of a half shell with a half teaspoon measure.

Ends Career As Montreal Nurse, Founds Milk Bank

MONTREAL (CP)—Miss Islay Hiscox, founder of Canada's first hospital milk bank, ended a 40-year career when she retired from her position as assistant supervisor of the Royal Victoria Maternity Hospital here.

A life-long nurse, she spent most of her career in maternity work—a work she loved.

When asked how many births she had attended, she replied: "I couldn't begin to guess. You lose count after the first 10,000."

In 1935, after being appointed assistant supervisor of the hospital, she won international recognition as the founder of the first milk bank.

The bank, her chief responsibility, is one of the most efficiently-operated banks on the continent. The milk, which is frozen and kept in deep-freeze lockers, is used in the feeding of premature babies.

Miss Hiscox also did notable work in the training of at least 11,000 student and graduate nurses.

Incidentally, Miss Hiscox has never missed one day on duty during her 40 years of nursing.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

An added feature of the broadcast will be flash-backs through the last 20 years of broadcasting to recall the highlights. In addition there will be brief messages from Dr. A. J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue; A. Davidson Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors; and Dr. Augustin Frigon, CBC general manager. Author and producer of the show will be Gerard Arthur, the Voice of Canada's French-language supervisor.

An old dog has learned a new trick, and in so doing may provide the answer to one of TV's most pressing problems—elimination of the cumbersome 'mike' boom. If further tests prove successful, actors will have greater freedom of motion on the stage and articulation will be greatly improved.

NBC-engineers are experimenting with a principle first developed and patented for radio broadcasts in the early 1930's—a new-type parabolic microphone dubbed 'The Big Ear' which measures six feet in diameter and capable of picking up high quality sound from distances as great as 35 feet. Designed Radio times and programs are furnished by stations and networks and are subject to last minute changes. The Times assumes no responsibility for inaccurate listings.

U.S. Defence Department Hires Army Of Civilians

Takes On Three For Every Four Draftees; Swelling Payroll Viewed With Much Dismay

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. taxpayer is supporting an army of federal job holders which is nearly as large and grows almost as fast as the armed forces.

President Truman's new defence budget will add about 50,000 civilian employees to the national defence payroll over a period of 14 months.

When all of these newcomers have been taken on, their annual payroll will amount to $1,495,250,000 at the average salary rate of all government workers. Their annual cost may be as low as $900,000,000 a year if they are paid at the average rate now prevailing in the National Defence Department.

Either way these new servants of the people will be expensive. Economy-minded officials and many mere citizens observe the swelling federal payroll with dismay. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., remarked recently that the defence department was hiring three civilians for every four men drafted.

Today he said there were 1,150,074 civilian employees on the armed services payroll as of April 1. On the same date there were 2,364,070 civilian federal job holders altogether. By June 30, 1952, when the armed services are to reach a strength of 3,472,000 men, it is likely that 3,000,000 or so federal job holders will be feeding off the taxpayers.

BAN SLANG DICTIONARY

DEARNE, Eng. (Reuters)—The town council voted last night to destroy a slang dictionary in the local library "because it might create a desire for the wrong type to get hold of it." The action was recommended because "use is made of certain old English words which describe certain universal customs."

Beating Caused Mainland Death

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Tuesday that pretty, 27-year-old Velma Louis died of "severe internal and external beating."

The jury added the beating occurred "at the Cordova Street address where she lived with" Sonny McLeod at the hands of a person not positively identified by us.

John Frank (Sonny) McLeod is charged with murder in the woman's death. The woman died in hospital April 2.

Shot By Accident

UNWILLING PSYCHIATRISTS DRIVE TORONTO M.H.O. NUTS

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's medical health officer is a frustrated man.

That might imply that he should go see a psychiatrist. But the trouble is that psychiatrists are the cause of Dr. Gordon Park Jackson's frustration.

For months Dr. Jackson has been trying to hire a psychiatrist as director of the mental hygiene division of his department.

He reported Tuesday to a board of health meeting that he has interviewed eight applicants, all friendly and interested to a point. Then invariably interest petered out.

In some cases the prospects said their future in present positions appeared to be much better despite the fact that the salary offered by the city was higher—ranging as high as $10,000.
